

A cute story about William Huffman was how he would let his grandchildren play and put curlers in his long beard. He was quite the character and would even go downtown with the curlers in his beard.